

Want to help improve the process of becoming a living kidney donor?

Complete the surveys for the Delphi Study!

The Delphi study is looking to improve the evaluation process of potential living kidney donors. We are asking previous donors to think back and give their insights on their experiences when they were becoming a donor. Understanding the current process of evaluation is the starting point for making the process more efficient and timely in the future.

If you are interested in participating in this one-time survey study or would simply like more information, please contact steven.habbous@lhsc.on.ca